Top of the food chain, or are we? Aids, hepatitis, SARS, ebola, we'll beat them all, or will we? What is the most successful species? What if...? People are dying, suddenly, without warning, by the tens, by the hundreds. Medical science is confronted with something beyond current knowledge, beyond the known. They cannot save lives. What can? Where would you seek answers? How strong would be your need to find the familiar reason? Sharon L Reddy has given us another magnificent set of characters in a what-if that leaps beyond others. Ms. Reddy's ground-breaking award-winning style, designed for high-speed, well-practiced modern readers, is combined with her masterful social construction and dialog in another epic tale, but this what-if isn't set in the far future. Aquarian Age Virus. Do you mourn enough? Can you desire enough? What does it mean to survive? This is science fiction.
